THE GREAT RAIGROAD LEASE.

Meeting of the Stockholders of the New Jersey Railroad-Majority for the Lease. The stockholders of the New Jersey Railroad held a meeting yesterday at Jersey City, which was designated the regular annual meeting, but which was really the gathering of the tribes around the dying bed of old Camden and Am-boy. There was a lachrymose expression about the faces of a few men of the olden time as they began to realize that the former as they began to realize that the former things had passed away. Dudley S. Gregory was there, an advocate of the preservation of self-government in the New Jersey companies; so were Nehemiah Perry and Martin A. Howell, and above all Judge Black, of Mount Holly, who made himself heard on the lease question. He was on his feet throughout the entire discussion, though he is an old man, and, like the prophet in Nineveh, warned his hearers to the last against the ruinous consequences of the proposed lease. He gave FACTS AND FIGURES, and though frequently interrupted, maintained his protest against being called upon to witness the signing of their death-warrant as a corporation possessing the finest railroad in the country. John C. Stevens, of Trenton, a chief of the old railroad block, sailed in under full canvas for the lease, while "Pete" Duryea, of Newark, executed some admirable sparring manœuvres and somersaults, while entertaining the meeting to a harangue in favor of the measure. "Pete" passes for a wit, and in his effort to cajole the stubborn old gentleman of the opposition into a submission to the inevitable, he was particularly successful. Voorhees, the good old anchorite, shook hands with "Pete" on the question, and, as they both passed out of the shade of the departed, "Pete" triumphantly cried out, "A great day for New Jersey!" Voorhees responding, "And for Pennsylvania." OPPOSITION WAS FRUITLESS, as it was evident the destroying angel had passed over the assemblage during the moraing hour. "No use," said Perry; "the thing is evidently fixed." And Nehemiah left for Long Branch, without waiting to drink, like the others, to the days that are over. An election for directors was held, and the following gentlemen were chosen:—Dudley S. Gregory, Henry R. Remsen, Hamilton Fish, Alfred L. Dennis, George R. Chetwood, Martin A. Howell, Ferdinand Suydam, Nehemiah Perry, and Isaac W. Scudder. There was only one ticket, and the result is an overwhelming vote in favor of the lease. The number of shares voted on was 43,817. Of these Gregory fell behind or was "scratched" to the number of 1046, Perry 977, and Howell 69, on account of their opposition to the lease .- N. Y. Herald to-day.

THE PITTSTON DISASTER.

A Card from Mine Inspector Williams. T. M. Williams, Inspector of Coal Mines, who was censured for neglect of duty by the Coroner's jury in the recent investigation concerning the Pittston coal mine disaster, has issued a card to the public in order to refute what he calls "the many vile reports and slanders" which have been circulated in the newspapers as to his responsibility for the calamity. After allud-ing to the coroner's inquest as "that farce of a jury," and complaining that he was expelled from the inquest because he informed the coroner that he was not competent to conduct it, he shifts the resposibility for the accident on the Superintendent of the mine by the following statement:-

My last visit was on May 24. They had just started afresh some time through the month and I was under the impression that the understanding previously between us, not to work chambers, was kept in good faith. I entered the mine, travelled the slope and airway into the east side gangway and airway, and then back to the foot of shaft; looked into the shifting shauty; saw some ten or a dozen persons in there on dinner. On going away from there towards the west gangway, I asked Mr. Kendrick how it was there were so many men in the shanty, and if any of them belonged to the slope that we had seen before. He said, "Yes, that those men from the slope were there on din-ner." I just thought that, and said I, "If not, you would have more than you complement of men down here." So we walked on into the west gangway and airway. Returned to a place where they were making a new stable, and on returning saw the road leading up the hill; asked if any one worked up there; Kendrick said "No, not now; they have been, but (After the fire it was proved that four chambers and a gangway were at work at the time of my visit, and that five new chambers were started the twodays next after I was there, and some new hands were employed to do so. From there we went to the return airway at foot of shaft; measured the air at the same place that Kendrick made out a report a few days previous and sent to me; my measurement (with m there to see it done) was 1680 cubic feet per minute at foot of upcast shaft. For the three splits together his report above referred to was 9600 cubic feet; and when I measured the 1680 cubic feet, the fan exhausted at the top 11,900 cubic feet. The day of the cala-mity Mr. Kendrick was experimenting to get more air out of the fan; at five minutes to one o'clock doubled her speed, got 22,000 feet, running her up to 180 revolutious, and likely no additional care or greasing to meet the double velocity and friction, and we all now see the

THE DEMOCRACY.

Threatened Rebellion in the Camp-The State Convention and How it was Managed. The Democratic newspapers of Pennsylvania do not seem to be unanimous in accepting the platform adopted by the State Convention on the 24th ult. The West Chester Jeffersonian, a well-known Democratic sheet, says:—

On the day before the convention several Democrats went up to Harrisburg from this place to prevent, if possible, the party from taking the contemplated step. The first one of the "ring" encountered on their arrival was H. G. Smith, of the Lancaster Intelligencer. From him they learned that there was a determination to put through the substance of the Vallandigham platform, he going so far as to say that he ham platform, he going so far as to say that he was opposed to the repeal of the fifteenth amendment.

In the evening, determined to seek the spring head of this dark and hidden stream, R. E. Monaghan, Esq., and Jos. Hemphill, Esq., repaired to the room of Hon. W. A. Wallace.

The conversation soon turned to the platform, when Wallace read some resolutions he had prepared, and Myers some that he had written both going the whole figure for the amend-ments and the nigger. Mr. Wallace prefaced the reading of his resolutions by the remark, "that he feared the first one (the negro one) would not suit his friends from Chester." After hearing it read, the gentlemen from West Chester condemned it in the severest terms, saying that it would be ruinous to the party in Chester county and throughout the State—that the record of the party was such on this question that it would be impossible to rally it upon such a platform— * * * * * And Monaghan, quite excited, arose from his seat and said:—"Well, gentlemen, I have not yet learned to be a d-d scoundrel in politics!"

* * * The ninth resolution was passed by 76 years to 53 nave.

yeas to 53 nays. The announcement of the vote was received with hisses and some little applause. During the delate the excitement was intense, and much feeling was displayed on both William A. Wallace was then very properly elected chairman of the State Central Committee, in order that he might demonstrate to the people of the State how totally destitute of consistency is a professional politician.

This whole affair was a job set up by a lot of scheming, huckstering politicians, headed by such men as Lewis C. Cassidy, William A. Wallace, B. F. Myers, Senator Davis, of Berks, and others; and who no more represent the true sentiments and principles of the Democratic party than do the edicts of the King of Dahomey.

A SHARP TRICK.

A United States Marshal Outwitted. A sharp trick was played yesterday in the vicinity of Læffler's Garden, by a party who had some time ago purchased a plano from the Gæhle Factory, in Baltimore. It appears that promised payments had not been made, and so the agent of the concern came to the city yesterday to recover possession of the instrument. He first went to the house and demanded the surrender of the plane, which was refused. e surrender of the plane He then proceeded to the Marshal of the District, and after the arrangement of brief pre-liminaries that officer, armed with the proper legal document, went to the house, and, finding the door locked, broke it in, and entering seized and levied on the plano, and brought it away As the triumphant marshal and the agent left the premises they received a note from the party from whom they had seized it, in which deputy marshal, and the specials, in great glee, in a furniture wagon.

But in order to comply with some legal form it became necessary to have the piano examined by an expert, and its value estimated. So the party drove down to Ellis' music store, and transferred the prize to the interior for exami-nation and valuation. It was locked. A piano key was produced, and the corner raised, when, lo it was one of the "planner fortys" that old Mr. Weller had in his mind when he proposed his plan to Sam, for getting Mr. Pickwick out of the Fleet Prison. It "hadn't got no vurks the writer expressed a fervent hope that the agent would be satisfied with his bargain.

Away went the instrument, the agent, the

It turned out that while the enterprising agent was looking up the Marshal, somebody had used a good screwdriver with such expedition that the entire action of the instrument had been removed and spirited out of sight. The agent now understood the meaning of the note which he had received as the piano was being removed. Of course it didn't take long to place a valuation on the instrument .- Washington Patriot, yesterday.

RUNAWAY ACCIDENT.

Terrible Casualty at Rochester. From the Rochester Express, 5th.

On Saturday night, about 10 o'clock, a terrible accident occurred on the corner of State and Centre streets, which resulted in the death of a young lady and the serious injury of three other persons. At that time John Kleinhanz was driving a team of horses belonging to Henry Bartholomay, brewer, drawing a lager beer wagon, on Jones street. Just then the 10 o'clock Niagara Falls train came along, at which the horses became frightened and started on a run, dashing down Jones street at a fearful pace The driver maintained his hold of the reins until reaching the corner of Centre and Jones streets where, in turning, he was thrown to the ground with great force, the fall breaking a leg and one of his arms, and bruising his body.

The maddened animals dashed onward with increased speed through Centre to State street. At this point a gentleman, accompanied by two ladies, was walking leisurely over the cross walk. Their names are Henry Hawley, Amanda Hawley, and Mary Green. They did not notice the approach of the team, and were knocked prostrate upon the ground. Immediately a large crowd collected, and the injured parties were taken up and conveyed into a store.

On examination it was found that two of the persons were injured severely, and one, Amanda Hawley, it was thought fatally. She was inwhen taken up, and in terrible agony Under the influence of stimulants she was re-turned to consciousness for a short time. Blood issued from her mouth, and it soon became apparent that her injuries were of a fatal nature. It was decided to remove all three sufferers to the City Hospital, whither they were accompa-nled by physicians.

Deceased was a relative of Henry Hawley, the injured man, whose thigh-bone was found to be fractured, and his head and body badly cut

Funerals of the Murdered Priests. Paris, June 7 .- The funeral ceremonies today over the remains of five clerical victims of the Commune were solemn and impressive. "Notre Dame" was grandly arrayed. The central object in the solemn pomp was a gorgeous catafalque containing

The Remains of the Archbishop, surrounded by minor structures bearing the corpses of Duguerry, Cure of the Madelaine: Suret, Grand Vicar of the Diocese; Becourt and Sebatur. The coffin of the Archbishop was covered with a pall of black velvet, embroidered and enriched with a massive silver cross. Thousands of tapers were burning in silver candelabra, and the incense vessels were also of

The floor was covered with black cloth and the pulpit covered with black gauze bespangled with silver stars. Black drapery covered every statue except those of the Virgin and child and St. Denis, first Bishop of Paris. In the midst of all were the black and charred remains of the bishop's chair; and his throne, also half burned, with which the Communists endeavored to burn the Cathedral, was left intact as a memento of the crime. The weather was dull. Along the route of the procession the windows and streets were crowded with spectators. Bells were tolling and salutes fired. A strong force of regulars with reversed arms and muffled drums were in the procession.

The Funeral Car of the Archbishop was covered with silver and drapery and drawn by six horses. Another eantiful car, containing the remains of Suret. followed. The procession reached the Cathedral at 11 o'clock. The inside was crowded with members of the Assembly, priests, and Sisters of Charity. At 11 o'clock the priests and deputies left the chancel, and proceeded to the great doors, which were draped in black, to meet the coffins. Chanting then commenced, and outside were heard the beating of drums, pealing of trumpets, and roaring of cannon. At the elevation of the Host the firing was repeated. The altar was magnificently decorated, and the service was long and solemn. MacMahon, L'Admirault, and Favre were present.

NEW YORK. June 8.-Dr. Sparr, brother-inlaw of Madames Woodhull and Claffin, died suddenly at French's Hotel yesterday in a fit.

General Sherman Positively Declines the Presidency.

The Herald publishes the following letter:— FORT SILL, COMANCHE RESERVATION, May 25, 1871.—I have been skirting the Texas border for the past month, and here for the first time I meet files of Eastern papers, by which I see quite an unnecessary muss has been raised by a purported speech made by me at a supper of the Union League Club of New Orleans the night preceding my departure from that city. Whoever reported that as a speech by me committed a breach of propriety, for Governor Warmouth presided, and before I consented to respond to a call I was assured by the President of the society that no reporters were present, and that whatever was said would be sacred and confined to the persons present, Now as to politics, I think all my personal friends know my deep-seated antipathy to the subject. Yet, as you seem not to understand me, I hereby state, and mean all that I say, that "I never have been and never will be a candidate for the Presidency, that if nominated by either party I should peremptorily decline, and even if unaminously elected I should decline to serve.' If you can find language stronger to convey this meaning you are at liberty to use it. I am your obedient servant, W. T. SHERMAN, General. The President's Views of the Situation. NEW YORK, June 8 .- The President in conversation yesterday said: -"There is a great deal of nonsense written about me. I don't want to do any more than carry out the wishes of the American people as they are expressed through their representatives and the press. I try to observe the oath of office I took when inaugurated, and I believe I have succeeded. What good I have done the credit is to the people.

The Faults of the Administration? are mine. My faults have come to the front and centre. What good I have done is under guard in the rear. It remains with the people to decide on the merits and the demerits of my administration.

As to the Indians, said the President, those people who clamor for the destruction of the Indians on the plains either are interested or know nothing of the condition of affairs in the wild regions where the Indians live. I have lived with Indians, and know them thoroughly. They can be civilized and made friends of the Republic. It takes tact and skill, however, to deal with them. They are shrewd and cunning, and won't be shoved out of their rights if they know it. My policy is peace.

When I said "Let us Have Peace"

I meant it. I want peace on the Plains as everywhere else. That attack on the Apaches was murder purely. The Apaches are warlike, that is, the young savages wander off to rob and murder occasionally, but no doubt they have provocation. I will investigate the massacre of the Apaches at Camp Grant and be

Just to All Concerned. The Indian question is not one the Government should be called upon to settle. The citizens of outlying States and Territories ought to be able to fix that. The Quakers are doing well, have done well, and will do more. Other denominations of Christians are also laboring with effect among the Indians, and they are all laboring for the same end, and I will give them all the support I can. I don't like riding over and shooting these poor savages.

1 Want to Conciliate Them, and make them peaceful citizens. The policy of peace is much preferable to the policy of war. You can't thrash people so that they will love you. Even though they are Indians, you make enemies friends by kindness.

He was a native of Indiana, from which State he was appointed to the Military Academy at West Point, remaining there from July, 1837, to July, 1841, when be graduated seventh in his class, and was commissioned brevet second lieutenant and assigned to duty as assistant ordnance officer at Alleto duty as assistant ordnance officer at Allegheny Arsenal, Pa. In 1845 he went to Richmond for the preparation of machinery to test gun metal and to supervise the manufacture of cannon. From September to November, 1846, he was at Boston, mounting and experimenting with Bomford's 12-inch columbiad. The greater part of the following year was passed at Pitts-burg, supervising the manufacture of cannon. In March, 1847, he was promoted to the rank of first lieutenant, and in July, 1855, was commissioned a captain "for fourteen years' continuous service." During this interval he was engaged in ordnance duties, part of the time at Pittsburg and Baton Rouge. From 1857 to 1859 he was engaged, at intervals, fixing the programme of experiments with caunon, experi-menting on gunpowder, and determining the proper form of cannon, testing carbines, and inproper form of cannon, testing carbines, and in-specting and fixing the quality of iron. He con-tinued his experiments until 1861, when he pub-lished their results in a valuable work, entitled "Reports of Experiments on Metals for Cannon and Cannon Powder." Previous to this Captain Rodman had invented the gun which bears his name. He supervised the casting and testing of the first 12-inch columbiad, 12-inch rifled gun, and 20-inch smooth bore, and from September, 1864, to his death supervised the casting of projectiles and ordnance (with hollow core and cooled from inside to outside, as invented by himself) for the Ordnance Department. In March, 1867, he was commissioned lieutenant-colonel of ordnance, and held that rank at the time of his death. General Rod-man's services during the rebellion were most valuable to the country. It was not his fortune to be called upon the battle field, but in preparing the ordnance for the use of the Union armies he performed a service whose value cannot be overestimated, and performed it so thoroughly that there never was the slightest complaint from the generals commanding in the

FINANCE AND COMMERCE.

EVENING TELEGRAPH OFFICE,
Thursday, June 8, 1571.
We have no special feature to notice in local financial affairs. There is a rather better business demand, owing to the active movements in some departments of trade, and there is a slight current of money towards the West and South to move the wool and cotton crops, but the market is amply supplied with loanable capital, and rates are easy and almost nominal.

Gold is quiet and steady, the sales ranging from 112%@112%, closing at 3%. Government bonds were dull but steady at about last night's closing figures.

The stock market was dull and prices were weak. Sales of City 6s, new bonds, at 100.

Reading Railroad sold at 58½, declining to 58.31, and closing at 58½. Pennsylvania was also weak, selling at 62½.662, closing at the latter. Camden and Amboy advanced to 130, with sales. Lehigh Valley changed hands at 623/s; Catawissa at 23, b. o.; and do., preferred Canal shares and the balance of the list were neglected. Sales of St. Nicholas Coal at 3 and New Creek do. at 3-16.
